Private Beta Update:

Hello Tamers!

Tomorrow (Friday, March 8th) we'll be launching our Monster Crown Private Beta to the Monster Designer tier backers! The Beta covers the first two chapters of the game.

The game is being tested & polished extensively, but we're looking for some hands-on time from fans to confirm we're on the right track and the game feels and is as fun as it can be.

This is a big part of the reason there's no release date yet! Player feedback will be used to determine how close we are and if additional work must be done to make the game fun, fair and balanced.

We're starting with the Kickstarter Monster Designers and, based on the results and feedback determine if and how we'll extend this group to more Monster Tamers and possibly add additional chapters of the game to the Beta for your enjoyment.

Monster of the Week! Vult:

Check out our latest Monster of the Week!

Type: Will

Height: 4ft 6in

Weight: 148lbs

Life Expectancy: 30 yr

Strength: Mega Volt Power

Tucked away deep in an underground facility, Vult is rarely seen by outsiders. No records of the monster exist before recent times, seemingly having sprung forth from the stray bolts of an overwhelming source of electrical power.

This monster is quite slow but can unleash a thunderous surge of lightning. They seem to have poor eyesight. As they slither they drag their heavy heads along the ground lazily. Tamers are advised to resist leaning on Vult unnecessarily - while a rare occurrence, the energy stored deep within them can travel through a human and diffuse into the ground unexpectedly, a feat Vult seems to be unable to control consciously. This seems to happen less frequently as they age.

Vult do not appear to age physically, but instead grow weak or strong depending on the frequency with which they are commanded to let loose power.
